The President of "Corvallis State Agricultural College," an old friend of ours, who is a most accomplished scholar, linguistic, mathematical and scientific, writes us Oct. 28, 1875 thus from far-off Oregon. "I am keeping house alone, an getting exceedingly tired of it—can't you send me a good wife? Now ladies this is an elegant gentleman, has a salary of $3000 in gold, and we endorse him on all the ground. Speak out, who will go? Sealed proposals received till Christmas.

Out this Out.
It is as much a good policy to buy a wagon with twelve wheels as to buy a sewing machine with three times as many parts as are necessary. The new Wheeler & Wilson has only sixty-one parts, while others have from 207 up to a basket full.

The Rev. S. W. Mitchell, our much admired friend and preacher, ministered to Rev. Mr. Alexander's congregation last Saturday and Sabbath at Cornersville. We heard his discourse on Saturday on Jacob's prayer for deliverance from Esau's wrath. Its characteristics were its humility, earnestness, directness, perseverance, and its faith. Its lessons that God answers prayer in kind, that He will be sought after for these things, and that He puts great honor on his faithful servants.

Japanese Paper Ware.
The greatest invention of the age—China and Japan. Will not leak, break, shrink, rot or fall to pieces. Samples at

WINSHIP'S JEWELRY STORE.
The Commissioner who started to the late Synod at this place, with two chickens, left them with Jerry Bayless as a reserve, or if not, must be forcibly impressed with the leaving as a providential act. One morning during Synod, the good lady with whom he stopped, reported keys of the pantry lost, and nothing to eat. Whereupon the Rev. Commissioner moved out immediately for Bayless'.

Whether the two chickens paid the last debt we are not advised, but somehow or other, knowing the clerical penchant for poultry as we do, a violent presumption arises in our mind of foul play and flying feathers.

The Capitol Store has given away since the last night 195 Calico Dresses, 341 Dressing Shawls, 729 Fair Shoes. Call and secure your presents. A. KOLSKY & Co., Prop't. nov18-3t

Mr. L. Hanneberg has purchased the interest of J. H. Silverberg in the Philadelphia Store, the firm will henceforth be Abrahams & Hanneberg, at McKissack's old Stand, east side public square. We refer the reader to their card in this paper, and bespeak for them a share of the patronage always so liberally bestowed upon our advertisers. Mr. Hanneberg may now be reckoned among the old citizens of Pulaski, having been a resident for several years, during which time he has made many friends who are glad of his prosperity. Mr. Pinkers, the affable book-keeper, Mr. Geo. Witt and Mr. J. Swartz, salesmen, remain with the new firm, and will be glad to see their friends.

Wanted.
Two hundred fat turkeys. 400 fat chickens, dressed without salt. All that have them for sale call on D. L. BRIDGES, Alamo House. nov18-1t

Lacey's Safe is now complete, and ready for scrutinizing inspection. It is mounted on a painted pedestal of rose-wood, embellished in front and laterally with circular carvings, the work of his own tasteful design and skillful execution. The stand upon which the safe rests is tipped at its angular projections with variegated colorings. Immediately beneath the sculpture, molding, in front, is the picture of the beautiful bird of Paradise, with plumage bespurred with the delicate tintings of iridescent splendor, and still beneath this, a floral cluster, wearing the glossy blush of its own cashmere leaves. Go and see the safe, and settle your accounts for last year.

To Contractors.
The Commissioners for repairing the bridges on the turnpike from Pulaski to the Maury county line are ready to receive bids for masonry and lumber, and will meet at A. P. Martin's shop on Saturday, Nov. 20th, to let out the work.

Wanted.
A good girl, which cow that will give four gallons a day. D. L. BRIDGES, Alamo House. nov18-1t

A Big Hunt.
"The healthy hunterman with his cheerful horn, summons the dogs and greets the dappled morn."

A promiscuous medley of Presbyterians, Episcopalians and Methodists, led on by Capt. Clifton Rodes, moved from the Square on Tuesday last, for a deer, duck and goose hunt, on the winding banks of the Tennessee, in Hardin county. There were Rev. Dr. Dorsett, Rev. F. Fagan, Dr. Sumpter, Rufus Reynolds, Eddie Sumpter, and the Capt. aforesaid; some in bugles, some in wagons, and some on mules.

Doubleless as we pen these lines—the distant mountains are from afar. And lo! the woods around the flying war. The tumbled noise the sprightly cooers, hares, the green turf, and pricks his trembling ears.

The slakened rain now gives him all his Back like the rapid ground beneath the hills, daisies, and forest, far behind remains. While the warm sun draws on the dew-matted figure.

No.
I have everything in the Queens and Glasgow line that a man can want. And it can be had at the very lowest figure. W. R. CRAIG.

We call attention to the card in this issue, of the law-firm of Parker & Merrell, young gentlemen "to the manner born," and who would be pleased to represent as many clients in the various courts of the country as may need the advocacy of a diligent, capable firm. These gentlemen give promise of a successful career in their chosen vocation.

Persons desiring to purchase or rent one or more tracts of VALUABLE LANDS in the 8th District of Giles county, may be accommodated by calling on T. M. N. JOHNS, Pulaski, Tenn. oct19-1f

The Reading Club.

The club met at Mrs. Faust's last Monday night. After the usual introductory exercises, the club were favored with readings. First by Miss Florence Faust—the Millennium, from Pollock. We thought the young lady read beautifully—with a comely, feminine diffidence, yet with a well-sustained self-possession.

Mrs. J. F. Grant next entertained the club, with Paradise and the Peri. The reader impressed us with her simple, unaffected style, her clear enunciation, and her steady adjustment of style and intonation to the varying strains of the highly wrought selection. These excellent points marked the beginning, the progress and the conclusion of her most creditable performance.

And last, but not least, not lone, came Mr. Talliaferro with a very sooty subject, the Stove and the Pipe. The piece appealed to us very pointedly—in fact, seemed almost personal. For it had so happened just a few days before, that we had undergone his stove-maintenance, in a similar vain effort to adjust the whimsical joints of our own stove-pipe. The reader had our best attention. As to his style, he was quite as easy as an old shoe, and manifested a degree of indifference to all style, which was truly sublime to the last degree.

Next came C. P. Jones, Esq., who didn't come, but who was excused from reading until the next meeting, which will be at the residence of Judge Jones. After the reading we vanished and did not enjoy the pleasure of the subsequent social chit-chat and the enlivening strains of music.

Andrews House.
Capt. B. F. Andrews has lately taken charge of the Summer Hotel, Gallatin, and is making one of the best hotels south of the Ohio river. We recommend our people to stop at the Andrews House when visiting Gallatin, and insure that they will find in Capt. Andrews a clever gentleman and affable host. nov18

Judge Spofford's Lecture.
This lecture was delivered under the auspices of Pulaski Lyceum, the second of the course for the season, on Thursday night of last week, at Antioch Hall.

As is usual with the distinguished lecturer, Pulaski accorded to his appearance on the platform no doubtful evidence of her high appreciation, in offering the accustomed compliment of a full house. But what shall be said of the lecture? It was the result of laborious gleanings, from home and foreign libraries, the cream of Anglo-American tomes elaborately collated, and forcefully, beautifully, set forth, as the digest of the best, that may be known of John Milton, his life and times. And we doubt not it would pass current with the literary elite of a British club-room, or a Boston Lyceum.

Columbia is hereby notified that a brace of as gallant knights as ever saw a rein, were seen wheeling in, Jehu-like, some seven miles West of her city limits, late last Saturday night. W. W. and T. K.

Joe and Walter Roberts, sons of Dr. J. J., bring us a couple of fine ears of corn, and some shelled grains as large as we have ever seen. This fine corn was grown on what some would call poor hillside.

Mr. Clay Crow, one of Pulaski's most enterprising men, has put a wide brick walk before his new block. We wish we had more Crows, or that this one owned more of the town.

Rev. Mr. DuBois of Bethany Church was in town last week. His ministrations of the word among that people, realizing its fruits in an increasing membership, as noted in our last issue.

We are pleased to state the R. R. officials on their late tour of inspection, found Pulaski office in perfect trim, and adjusted to all the demands of a well kept business. Well done for Mr. Dunn and his assistant, Zack.

Capt. Ballentine returned Tuesday from Memphis and Mississippi. He brings with him from the latter place, glowing accounts of the rejoicings of that long oppressed people, re-joicings over their late redemption from Radical oppression and misrule.

Capt. Ben. Taylor, of Alabama, fetched a halt in Pulaski last week. Whether the gallant Captain was drawn hither by the merry marriage-making, so abundantly in vogue just now, we can't tell. At any rate, pleasant smiles suffused his glad countenance.

Mr. Alfred White received a somewhat serious hurt above his right eye, by a heavy fall from a ladder at his ginhouse recently. The effused blood that discolors the region of the eye, still tells the tale. A few days thereafter, by an unfortunate misadventure, he cut his right foot with a keen edged ax.

On a late visit to Maury we met Miss Mildred Ezell and Mollie McBride, who were visiting Miss Katie Harlan. Miss Mildred was captivated all, both old and young, with the charming strains of mellifluous song. Columbia's gallant beaux heard the flame thereof, and were drawn some seven miles near to these voiceful melodies.

Had you observed Capt. James "Hymen" Andrews' unique winter suit? How soft of touch and warm of texture, as though it had been provided for a Hudson Bay expedition. Wonder if he made the tour of those hyper borean regions, while on his late visit to the Queen's Dominions?

For Sale.
A desirable building lot in rear of the Methodist Church, on 6 and 12 months time, with interest from date. W. F.
